y Sunshine in Southern Texas-y of Galveston Showing the Sigh to Visiting Scribes—Overflow-ing Hotels.

Galveston, Texas, Feb., 17.—One day of the National Editorial Asso-ciation has passed and the program prepared for this city lasts until Fri-day night. At that time the party will divide, about half of the members leaving on a two weeks' trip to the City of Mexico, 1500 miles from here and the others returning to their homes.

When the St. Louis party arrived in Galveston they found other parties already here and the total attendance now foots up about 400 men and 150 "stand."

The stand consists of an old-fash-ioned arm chair placed on top of a bisected dry goods box. Both the box and the chair are studded with brass-head tacks and other orna-ments, so that they resemble the dais and throne of a cannibal king's recentive, resemble.

ments, so that they resemble the dais and throne of a cannibal king's reception-room.

Mr. Pinckney Marsh usually has the market page of a yesterday's paper texcled under the chair cushion, so that the customer may read while his shoes are being cleaned. Pinckney (the common abbreviation being Pink) has a corner reputation as an expert shiner.

He greits the final polish by breathing heavily on all parts of the shoe, which is then attacked with a piece of red flanner. "Pink" has to something of a contortionist in order to breathe on the heal of, the shoe without disturbing the man in the chair, but he does it, and takes some professional pride in the accomplishment.
Pink's shirt is a black and white study of trellises, with vhrese clima yu them.

Pinis s snirt is a black and white study of trelliess, with vines climbing up them. The vest is double-breasted, and was once polita-dot slik, but now the dots are mostly blurred away and the pockets have begun to ravel. His trousers are a black and brown check, and are worn thin at the knees and ragged at the bottom. The shoes are extremely pointed, two sizes too large, cracked across the top and protuberant at the heel. When Pink is drossed for the street he wears a double-breasted coat tightly buttoned, a spreading blue neektie that has been handled once or twice too often, a high white collar and a light brown hat will a high crown. Pink improves as you study him from the ground up.

His apparel might be judged as Shoes—Utterly disreputable.

Necktie—Showy.
Collar—Splendid.
Hat—Magnificent.
What need to tell of the coalblack face, the broad flanged nose, the elastic mouth opening on teeth of pearly whiteness and the close growth of kinky hair?
A song of passing popularity tells that all members of the Ethiopian so that the movement is a slow dance step. He seems to be keeping time unsick which only the rapt and colored soul may bear. Pink leavens all the conversation in the barber shop. Whether the barbers be discussing the immortality of the soul, the heavy-weight championship, proposed tarif legislation or things to sat, Pink says something entertaining.

The barbers like him and pity

The barbers like him and pity him.

They are men who have given much study to public questions. For instance, chair 2 argued with chair 5 for a solid hour one day last week, the question under consideration being: "Did Fits fool Sharkey?" It follows that men who are fountains of useful knowledge must pity a colored porter and bootblack such as Fink, who knows comparatively not hing about the three they like him and the control of the con pretense.

Only the other day he said, in a confidential talk with the morning customer: "Lisée at èm toss that language! Ain't they wahm? It you wan' know a thing, jes' you come to these boys an' ask. If they don't know—no use to loue in them cyclopedes. It ain't theah—couldn'

Cocoanut day—the conciliation of Neptune—has just been celebrated in India. God Neptune is a most important delty, and it is always advisable to keep him in good humor. There is no saying otherwise how his friend Varuna may blow the moseous. The cocoanut day, of course, marks the subsidence of god Neptune's playfulnes's, when the hoary delty made some fun by leading the "floating palaces" of the humans a nice little dance on his frisky waves.

All the Requirements.

It is said that nearly 300 patents have been issued in the United States for machines for breaking hemp, many of which have proved absolute failures, while none of them have filled the requirements of an economically successful hemp-cleaning device, the Kentucky hemp grower of to-day-relying upon the rude and clumsy five-slatted hand brake of his grandfather's time, a device similar in all respects to that used for the same purpose at the present day by the hemp farmers of Brittany. The French brake is only a slight advance upon that used in this country, being smaller, composed of both wood and metal, and having seven instead of five slats.

While a less clumsy affair than the American device, yet a French workman cannot clean with it workman cannot clean with it may be a state of the slats.

History will rememb v him as a pondrous mugication of the presidential office a poor man, betrayed his party, hobmobbed with gold gamblers and retired a millionaire. May we never see his like again. Even McKinley will be a welcome change.

Prince George, of Greece, who has foreibly invested the island of Crete, from Turkey, has more of the attributes of royalty than any monarch on the thrones of Europe. He is a magnificent specimen of physical manchood, is brave and fearliess in his bearing and when there is fighting to do leads his own army. The Powers will doubtless look on approvingly while the modern Greeian hero despoils the Sultan of one of his richest islands, almost without firing a shot.

Twenty Years....

For more than twenty years we have been telling how Scott's Emulsion overcomes the excessive waste of the system, puts on flesh, nourishes and builds up the body, making it the remedy for all wasting diseases of adults and children, but it isn't possible for us to tell the story in a mere stickful of newspaper type.

We have had prepared for as by a physician a little book, telling in easy words how and why Scott's Emulsion benefits. and a postal card request will be enough to have it sent to you free. To-day would be a good time to send for it.

MOREHEAD HOUSE

TWENTY-FIVE HATS.

BY DAVID KER.

He was a Frenchman—no doubt about that. He was a very pleasant fellow—no doubt about that, either. But what his occupation might be was a puzzler to us all. A salior he could never have been, as anyone could see by his unsteady walk on deek, and his very poor performance at dinner the first day out from Lisbon.

He was too polite for a government official, too quiet and thoughtful for a commercial traveler, too well informed for a newspaper correspondent, too grammatical and refined in his language for a popular author. From a certain jauntiness in his air and manner, and the semi-military cut of his short, gray mustache, some of our party were inclined to set him down as a retired army officer; but the sudden start with which he clapped his hands to his ears when the signal-gun was fired close to him was quite sufficient to knock that theory on the head.

now shop in the Row Sain. Home, and as was doing a pretty fair business, though perhaps not quite so good as I had expected.

"But one day business had been musually slack, and I was beginning to be rather put out about it, when, to oward afternoon, in came a fine-looking gentieman, dressed in the height of the fashion, saying that he pattern of his own, to be easily by a certainNay. There were to be 25 of them in all, and the pattern that he gave me was exactly the same as the hat of that gentleman yonder. "It struck me at the time as rather an odd lides, for, although the shape happened to be in fashion just then, the color cartainly wasn't. "But after all, it was no business of mine, so long as he chose to pay for his fanor, and, as he began by paying in advance a good part of the price, I went to work with a will, thinking that most likely it was only some new clut that wastell a distinguishing badge.

"When the hats were one of the same has a will, thinking that most likely it was only some new clut that wastell a distinguishing badge.

"When the hats were one of the price, I was only some new clut that wastell a distinguishing badge.

"When the hats were the other was only some new clut the wastell a distinguishing badge.

"When the hats were the other were paid for and sent home—which was just about the time when Paris was beginning to fill with the first rush of visitors to the opening of the exhibition—I put on my new hat and went out for a walk.

"The streets were very crowded that day, and I hadn't gone far when I caught sight of a man with a hat like my own. He came toward me and said, in an undertone, as lepassed, without looking at me:

"A fine day for business, comrade, and no police about."

"I don't think I ever got such a start in my life. If the man wasn't, crazy, there was only one possible explanation for his words, and that it was running, as it my life depended on it, to the nearest police station, and there I told my story.

"Pocket that, quick!"

"Now that was a gold watch, a purse and

It was in a rather curious fashion that the truth came out at last. On the third afternoon—when we were already well down the African coast that the truth came out at last. On the third afternoon—when we were already well down the African coast who have the standard of the third afternoon—when we were already well down the African coast who have the same of the third afternoon category and the same of the second to have known quite seel, and stared fixedly straight beforehin, as if he had seen a ghost.

I looked somewhat anxiously in the same direction, expecting to see, at the very least, the ship on fire or somebody falling overboard, but nothing was to be seen more remarkable than a very sickly-looking saloon passenger crawling up the cabin hatchway for the first time since we started.
